John Hubbard Wilkins
1794–1861

John Hubbard Wilkins, Harvard graduate, originally destined for the ministry, eminent Boston merchant and banker, distinguished public servant of city and state, author of an outstanding treatise on astronomy, father of the Cochituate water supply for Boston, and generous benefactor of church and charitable organizations, combining as he did so many estimable qualities, has been chosen as the subject for the frontispiece of this genealogy, in recognition of the distinction and high honor he brought to the family name.

Preface

This volume is no pretense at a complete genealogy of all descendants of Bray Wilkins. It is, rather, a studied record of material now available about Bray Wilkins and the earlier generations of his family, presented at sufficient length to permit many of those now living to recognize and trace their lines of descent. In some instances the lineage has been carried to a late date to include individuals of distinction or families located in New England and elsewhere.

The family of Bray Wilkins provides an interesting and perplexing genealogical study. The earlier generations had a marked proclivity for marrying immediate relatives and adhering to favorite given names. When an alliance was formed outside the charmed communal Wilkins center at Will's Hill, it was the signal for repeated inter-marriages. Thus we find twenty-four members of the Wilkins family marrying Peabodys; seven Wilkins children marrying seven sons and daughters of Cooley Smith; and similar multiple marriages with the Upton, Case, Weston and other families.

Several futile attempts have been made to chronicle this family. Mrs. Martha J. Averill, a descendant, made the most ambitious attempt, but, tragically, when she passed on, unappreciative relatives and friends made a bonfire of a great quantity of irreplacable original documents and accumulated data. Walter M. Wilkins, of Buffalo, also had in mind a Wilkins genealogy as the last work of a busy life, but did not live to carry on.

The temerity of the author in taking up the task is explainable only by a desire to preserve for the future data now available and in danger of being lost, and to clarify conflicting traditions which have long confused later generations.

The family, with its many distinguished descendants, many more than are recorded herein, is worthy of a complete and exhaustive genealogy. It would embrace many thousand, perhaps tens of thousand, names, for the family is widely scattered in all parts of the nation. Perhaps some day there will be a Wilkins Family Association which will take up this work. If this volume serves as a foundation for such endeavor its publication will be well merited.

The author is indebted to the staffs of the Essex Institute of Salem and the New England Historic Genealogical Society; Mrs. Benson P. Perley of Carlisle, Mass., and El Paso, Texas; Mrs. E. J. Fellowes of San Antonio, Texas, and others in the family, for their cooperation and help and also recognizes the value of information gleaned from numerous town histories and public documents in the New England area.

Bray Wilkins

BRAY WILKINS, one of the most industrious, energetic and prosperous men of his time in the American colonies, was a native of Wales and came to America in his early twenties. There is a tradition he came to Salem, Mass., with Governor Endicott about 1628, but as no list of those who came at that time is extant, it cannot be substantiated. The earliest definite record of his presence in this country is his signature on a paper acknowledging the allotment of 16 acres of land in Dorchester, Mass., dated January 16, 1632, at which time he was 22 years of age. His birth has been established as taking place in 1610, from statements made in court and church by himself and from his death record in the diary of Rev. Joseph Green, a contemporary.

The ancestry of Bray Wilkins in Wales has not been established. The authors of several historical works on old Salem, as well as the histories of several New England towns where members of the family settled, make significantly similar references to Bray Wilkins as being a descendant of "Lord Wilkins" of Wales who was a connection of Bishop Wilkins, who married a sister of the Protector, Oliver Cromwell. It is also alleged that he came from Brecknock county, in Wales. Bray is even definitely described as a "great grandson of Lord Wilkins" and some have gone so far as to produce a Wilkins coat of arms. Others make the claim Bray was a son of Lord Wilkins, Bishop of Chester. It seems to have been overlooked that Lord Wilkins was born in 1614, four years after Bray.

There were many Wilkins families in Wales and there is much information about the family, running far back into English history, and it is quite likely Bray Wilkins had his antecedents in one or another of those families, but after diligent and thorough inquiry by English and Welsh authorities, conducted in the interests of this genealogy, it must be admitted no definite trace has been found as to Bray Wilkins' presence in Wales or of any who might be his immediate ancestors.

The life and achievements of Bray Wilkins himself are sufficiently full and notable to bring distinction upon all his posterity. A neighbor of the descendants of Bray long acquainted with the family, has said: "Among other early settlers none stood higher than this Bray Wilkins. He was known at Salem Village (Danvers) for 42 years as a pious and good citizen and a firm supporter of the church and parish." Upham, outstanding recorder of old Salem, says: "Bray Wilkins had industrious habits, a resolute will, a strong constitution and iron frame, and six stout sons." Another has said of the Wilkins family that they were "noted for their energy, industry, integrity, piety, perseverence, fortitude, patience, resourcefulness, initiative, courage, loyalty and leadership." One could hardly ask more.

Whether Bray Wilkins landed at Salem, which seems likely, or elsewhere, he was early closely identified with Dorchester, Mass., to the south of Boston. Having received his 16 acres of land in 1632, already referred to, Bray took the oath of freeman on May 14, 1634, which distinction at that time was bestowed on numerous men of the district by the General Court. He was identified with the First Church in Dorchester, his wife, Hannah, was a member in 1636, and he himself is recorded as having been admitted to the reorganized church in Dorchester on April 9, 1640.

Dorchester church records of October 2, 1636 show that on that date it was ordered that Bray Wilkins "shall have six acres of upland in place of his great lot, being a little neck lying by Mr. Makepeace's and Mr. Bramer's meddowe." Again, in 1639, Bray was granted pasturage land on Thompson's island, provided he set forward fishing and contributed to school funds. It was stipulated in the order that "the rents and profits issuing and arising of the said land shall be converted and applied only to and for the maintenance and use of the school."

An interesting document on file in the archives of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, at the state house in Boston, is a petition[1] in the handwriting of Bray Wilkins, beseeching the General Court to provide him professional services for "a boy who hath ben lame for the greatest part of the time," asking for help to have him cured, because "I am but a poor man." The petition is dated January 5, 1643 and refers to a servant boy in the employ of Bray.

What seems to have been Bray's outstanding initial business venture in the new world, giving evidence of his genius and energy, was the establishment of a ferry service on the Neponset river. On September 6, 1638, the General Court licensed Bray Wilkins "to set up a house and keep a ferry at Neponset river and have a penny a person." The ferry ran from the ridge in Quincy to Sling Point in Dorchester, half way between the present Neponset avenue and Granite street bridges, where, at the time, was a busy settlement of fishing folk.

One of the last official references to Bray Wilkins in Dorchester is his classification among the proprietors of Dorchester as to fencing lots, dated December 6, 1646. That he long continued to have an interest in his early home is shown, however, by the fact that, as late as 1676, he still owned land in Dorchester for, on January 25, 1676, he sold a piece of land, two acres and a half of upland, in the second division of Dorchester, to Joshua Henshaw of Dorchester for four pounds ten shillings.

On July 29, 1698 the General Court awarded Bray Wilkins 25 lots, amounting to 35 acres, beyond the "Blew Hills" in Dorchester, being his share of the unallocated lands.

It is regrettable that there is not more information about the intimate family life of Bray Wilkins while in Dorchester. That is due largely, no doubt, to the incomplete, or lost, records of the First Church in Dorchester, previous to its "reorganization" in 1640. It is recorded that Hannah, the wife of Bray, was admitted to the Dorchester church June 23, 1636, and there is also a record of Bray's first son being baptized as early as 1636.

Bray Wilkins' wife was probably Hannah Gengell. There is no record of the marriage to be found, which probably occurred at Dorchester between 1632 and 1636, for on the latter date Hannah Wilkins, the wife of Bray, is recorded as having been received into the First Church in Dorchester. Two persons who had access to much early documentary material about the Wilkins family, now lost, Mrs. Martha J. Averill and Mrs. Emily Ann (Wilkins) Milliken, maintain that Bray's wife was Hannah Gengell. Family tradition, generally, among those now settled in and near Middleton, is to the same effect.[1]

Hannah Gengell was the sister of John Gengell, one of the incorporators of Taunton, Mass., in 1643. He was made a freeman in 1646 and described as a tailor. December 2, 1646 Gengell is recorded as having become an inhabitant and proprietor of land in Dorchester. Gengell is believed to have come to Dorchester to be near his sister and it is significant that from this time on he is closely associated with Bray Wilkins, their business and family relations being closely interwoven throughout the rest of their lives.

Wilkins and Gengell left Dorchester together and went to Lynn to work iron mines there. Together they bought the Bellingham grant in Salem and they lived together in the same house in Salem Village (now Middleton) until Gengell built a house of his own close by. And when Gengell died his will provided that all his property be distributed among the children and grandchildren of Bray Wilkins and his wife. The only exception was a gift of five pounds to the First Church in Dorchester, the memory of which is preserved in a silver cup marked "John Gengen 1685," still preserved by the society.

[1] The first wife of William Nichols, early settler of Salem, was Mary, or Margaret, Gengell (or Gingell), who died before 1640. Two children of Nichols, by a second wife, married two children of Bray Wilkins. The name was uncommon. Could she have been a sister of John Gengell and Mrs. Bray Wilkins?

Hannah Wilkins survived her husband but the date of her death has not been found. All the evidence available today appears to substantiate the claim that she was Hannah Gengell, and there is nothing to the contrary.

The name Gengell is spelled in as many as 14 different ways, including Gingell, Gingill, Gingion, Gingine, etc., even "Ingalls," but the signature on the will of John Gengell is "Gengell,' to which we have adhered.

Bray Wilkins, with his brother-in-law John Gengell as partner, left Dorchester in 1646 and went to Lynn to try their luck at the iron mines which had been opened up by workmen from England, under direction of the "Undertakers Association." Inasmuch as Wilkins has been recorded as a resident of Lynn for the next few years, it is likely that he and Gengell worked about the iron deposits at Hammersmith, now Saugus, then a part of Lynn. It is notable that the property has since been worked, to some extent most recently by the late Wallace Nutting, who, with the help of imported English artisans to fashion the iron, developed an interesting industry in decorative "antique" ironware.

There is a possibility, however, that Wilkins and Gengell may have carried on their operations at another mine which had been uncovered on the Denison grant, in Salem Village. This ore deposit was within the confines of the present Middleton village, and less than a mile from Will's Hill, later to become Wilkins' permanent home. Today, there is abundant evidence of extensive operations at this spot, extending over some 25 acres or more. If Wilkins came to this locality it would explain his interest in Will's Hill and the probability that he brought his family here soon after leaving Dorchester. It would also furnish grounds for a singular stipulation in the Buckingham contract, mentioned later.

It is doubtful if Wilkins and Gengell found their mining operations very profitable but it is known that they took out some considerable quantities of ore, some of which they were to use to advantage later, as will be shown.

Bray became a constable in Lynn and court records for a decade or more give evidence he was active in the prosecution of his official duties in both Lynn and Salem. In July 1657, in Salem court, one "John Hathorne was admonished for contemptuous words against authority, spoken to Bray Wilkins, constable of Lyn, while executing his office." Another was brought to justice in 1658 for having used profane language in the presence of Bray Wilkins, it being put in evidence that the individual had, not once, but twice, declared "I vow to God" in the course of a conversation. There is a record, as early as April 24, 1656, of Bray being sworn in as a constable of Lynn. Another court record in 1680 gives his age as "about 68 years."

Up to this time there appears to be little evidence of the actual habitation of Bray Wilkins and his family. With his wife, he had eight children, six boys and two girls, by 1655, and doubtless Bray realized the necessity of establishing himself in some permanent locality for the raising of his family.

Fortunately, through recorded deeds and mortgages, and the traditions of many descendants, one is able to follow fairly well from this time on the problem of Bray's family life.

Sometime before March 10, 1659 Bray Wilkins and John Gengell had leased from the estate of Squire Richard Bellingham, afterwards governor, a certain piece of land in Salem. The site was remote from Salem proper, some eight or ten miles to the northwest, in what became later Danvers and still more recently the town of Middleton. The exact location where Bray and Gengell were to establish their homes, if we can rely on tradition, was on the south slope of what is even today known as Will's Hill, slightly to the north and west of the present Middleton Center and overlooking a large pond. Here Bray and John Gengell established themselves, perhaps living together at first, as Gengell, it is believed, was never married, and clearing for themselves a small farm on the rugged hillside. Later Gengell was to have his own house, close to Bray's.

The Bellingham property grant was one of the notable transactions of the early colonial days. A tract of some 700 acres of wooded country, with about 150 acres more of meadow, had been made a colonial grant to Squire Richard Bellingham on September 6, 1638. It was "at the head of Salem," northwest of the town, at a place called "Will's Hill," named for an old Indian, Black Will, last of his tribe living there: "There being within the said place," states the record, "a hill where an Indian plantation sometime had been & a pond, and about a hundred or a hundred and fifty acres of meadow." (See Appendix A.)

As Bray's third child was born in Salem as early as 1644 he may have established his family in that town even while he was performing his official duties as constable in Lynn. In fact, from the evidence at hand, it would seem that Bray and Gengell had gone to Will's Hill sometime before 1659. In any event by 1659 Bray Wilkins had satisfied himself he had at last found his permanent abode and he made overtures to Squire Bellingham for the purchase of the entire grant of 850 acres.

On March 10, 1659 Wilkins and Gengell executed a mortgage deed with Squire Bellingham and his wife Penelope by which the whole grant was deeded to them. The purchase price was 225 pounds and Wilkins and Gengell made a down payment of twenty-five pounds, of which twenty-four pounds was in a ton of bar iron and one pound in money, presumably all their earthly possessions.

The conditions of the transfer were that the property should be divided into three parts. One third was to include the homestead and developments made by Wilkins and Gengell, and the money and iron turned over to Bellingham was to apply to this third, leaving it free and clear to the new owners. The remaining two thirds were mortgaged at eight per cent interest to Bellingham for the balance of the purchase price.

A singular condition of the sale was to the effect that if Wilkins mined ore on the property he was to pay ten pounds annually to Squire Bellingham and his heirs as royalty.

Squire Bellingham evidently did not, either from ignorance or design, view the transaction in the same light as Wilkins and Gengell, for, on April 26, 1666 he brought action in the Salem court against Wilkins and Gengell "for injuriously and forcibly holding possession of a farm many years after it was legally forfeited."

The case came to trial and forms one of the most interesting of records in Salem archives, being found in the Essex County Quarterly Court Files, volume three, pages 322 to 324. The reader may judge for himself as to the merits of the case, from the following record:

"Richard Way, aged 42 years, deposed that the last of January 1664, he was with Wilkins, Gengell and Nathaniel Putnam at Mr. Richard Bellingham's house and he heard the latter say that he would mortgage it (the grant) for two thirds, and that the land which they had improved should be their third part, that they should go on with their building, etc.

"When they went to the governor the next summer to demand their third part and showed several receipts from him, also their accounts for the farm, he looked at the papers, and upon demanding their return, he said: 'No, now I have them I will keepe them and soe did' which action was so greeveus to the spirrit of this deponent that after the said Wilkins and Gengell were gone out of the roome this deponent steyed back againe and desired the Governor to consider how Dishonorable a thing this Action of Retaining theire receipts would be unto him whereupon he Replied here is one of the Receipts which was not written by my selfe, take that if you will and he tooke it to me but owned that he had received the same in that specified and the Rest he would keepe and so did. Sworn in court."

Further evidence presented at this trial is of interest as showing the activity of Bray in developing his property and realizing from its natural products.

John Smyth, 42, and William Howard, 57, who had served the writ, stated "Bray owned that the past winter he had felled and made from off the said farm 6,000 barrel staves for Mr. Corwin."

It was shown Phillip Knight had cut 20,000 white oak barrel staves and 1100 feet of boards the year before and 6,000 feet of boards besides.

It was also brought out that the writ had attached three parcels of shingles lying near Wilkins' home and two parcels near Gengell's. The defendants had made cedar clapboards and other vendable commodities, it was testified.

At this same trial it was stated by Nathaniel Putnam that in the latter part of January 1664 Bray's house had burned and "brought him to a meane and low condition."

The verdict of the jury was for the defendants but the record states "the court did not accept the verdict."

Possibly to secure funds to aid in the operation of the tract, or to meet mortgage payments, Bray made sale of a portion of the property to his "trusty kinsmen," Aaron Way and William Ireland, May 12, 1675, and the original deed for this transfer is in possession of the Weston branch of the family, a photostat of the same being held by Mrs. Eugene J. Fellowes of San Antonio, Texas, now in her 93rd year.

Felt's Annals of Salem, volume 1, page 210, makes mention of another transaction in which Wilkins and Gengell, on March 31, 1673, mortgaged two thirds of the 700 acres as security for 50 pounds, with interest at six per cent, unto John Oxenbridge, Anthony Stoddard and James Allen of Boston, executors of the will of Richard Bellingham.

It is a matter of record however, that Bray and his sons discharged the mortgage on the Bellingham estate in full by 1676 and at the same time bought out what interest Gengell had in the venture.

After this Bray sold more of the land, and also acquired adjacent properties, notably 300 acres owned by Maj. Gen. David Denison of Ipswich, so that eventually he had an extensive tract of land running for two miles along the Reading line, free and clear of all debt.

In 1661, on petition of Wilkins and Gengell, the General Court had allowed the tract to be put under the jurisdiction of Salem.

John Gengell is known to have lived at Will's Hill as late as 1679 but in 1682 he was recorded as a taxpayer in Danvers. He died in 1686 and his will is filed in the Suffolk county probate court in Boston and recorded in volume 11, page 61. It is reproduced later.

In January 1669 Bray Wilkins and John Gengell had signed a petition for a new meeting house at Salem, presumably the house to be erected at Salem Village, now Danvers. Many years after, in 1723, the inhabitants were released from their ecclesiastical obligations to Salem Village (Danvers) on condition of having a settled minister, and, in 1728, these lands, with parts of Andover, Boxford and Topsfield, were incorporated into a town by the name of Middleton.

In the year 1679 there is a record of Bray Wilkins having been made a tything man in the Salem Village church.

Having established his clear and sole title to all the Bellingham grant Bray Wilkins proceeded to carry out the vision of a great family community center. One by one, he furnished each of his children with a house, barns, orchards, gardens, meadows, upland and woodland, all out of his own holdings. In like manner he endowed some of his grandchildren until eventually he had created a great communal settlement, perhaps with no counterpart in the country. By suggestion, or intent, or natural inclinations, his progeny in the third and later generations married and intermarried among members of the Wilkins family, until slowly but steadily the homes of the Wilkins tribe covered all the hills and vales about the old manse.

Bray Wilkins found the dream of his laborious life crowned with success and henceforth was to be known as "The Patriarch of Will's Hill."

It has been quoted that Bray was not only an industrious man but a devoted church supporter. What an impressive sight it must have presented when Bray Wilkins, vigorous and active up to the last of his 92 years, wended his way each Sunday down the roughest of all roads, following old Indian trails, in all seasons and all weathers, often fording swollen streams, along the five miles from Will's Hill to Salem Village, leading his great family of children, grandchildren, and great grandchildren to their devotions at the parish church.

When the new church at Salem Village was organized in 1789, with Rev. Samuel Parris as minister, Bray Wilkins signed the covenant on November 19, 1689 and indicated his age as 79 years.[1]

As his 92 years covered the entire period of the witchcraft delusion in Salem, it was inevitable the family of the Patriarch of Will's Hill should have been more or less disturbed and involved. That the Patriarch was not entirely free from the malevolent influences appears from some of the astounding documents of the day.

The following extract, taken from the History of Salem, by Upham, gives an intimate story of Bray's experience; of John Willard, grandson of Bray, who was executed as a witch, and of Daniel Wilkins, another grandson, who was "bewitched to death" and well illustrates the fanaticism of the period.

John Willard, a grandson of Bray Wilkins, had been called upon to aid in the arrest, custody, and bringing-in of persons accused, acting as a deputy constable; and from his observation of the deportment of the prisoners, and from all he heard and saw, his sympathies became excited in their behalf; and he expressed, in more or less unguarded terms, his disapprobation of the proceedings. He seems to have considered all hands concerned in the business—accusers, accused, magistrates, and people—as alike bewitched. One of the witnesses against him deposed, that he said, in a "discourse" at the home of a relative, "Hang them; they are all witches." In consequence of this kind of talk, in which he indulged as early as April (1692), he incurred the ill-will of the parties engaged in the prosecutions; and it was whispered about that he was himself in the diabolical confederacy. He was a grandson of Bray Wilkins; and the mind of the old man became prejudiced against him, and most of his family connections and neighbors partook of the feeling. When Willard discovered that such rumors were in circulation against him, he went to his grandfather for counsel and the aid of his prayers. He met with a cold reception, as appears by the deposition of the old man as follows:

"When John Willard was first complained of by the afflicted persons for afflicting them, he came to my house, greatly troubled, desiring me, with some other neighbors, to pray for him. I told him I was then going from home, and could not stay; but, if I could come home before night, I should not be unwilling. But it was near night before I came home, and so I did not answer his desire; but I heard no more of him upon that account. Whether my not answering his desire did not offend him, I cannot tell; but I was jealous, afterwards, that it did."

[1] Perley's History of Salem vol ii, p 445

"Willard soon after made an engagement to go to Boston, on election-week, with Henry Wilkins, Jr. A son of Henry Wilkins, named Daniel,—a youth of seventeen years of age, who had heard the stories against Willard, and believed them all, remonstrated with his father against going to Boston with Willard, and seemed much distressed at the thought, saying, among other things, 'It were well if the said Willard were hanged.'

"Old Bray Wilkins must go to election too; and so started off on horseback,—the only mode of travel then practical from Will's Hill to Winnesimit Ferry,—with his wife on a pillion behind him. He was eighty-two years of age and she probably not much less; for she had been the wife of his youth. The old couple undoubtedly had an active time that week in Boston. It was a great occasion, and the whole country flocked in to partake in the ceremonies and services of the anniversary.

"On election-day, with his wife, he rode out to Dorchester, to dine at the house of his 'brother, Lieutenant Richard Way.' Deodat Lawson (former minister in Salem Village) and his new wife, and several more, joined them at table. Before sitting down, Henry Wilkins and John Willard also came in. Willard, perhaps, did not feel very agreeably towards his grandfather, at the time, for having shown an unwillingness to pray with him. The old man either saw, or imagined he saw, a very unpleasant expression in Willard's countenance. 'To my apprehension, he looked after such a sort upon me as I never before discerned in any.' The long and hard travel, the fatigues and excitements of election-week, were too much for the old man, tough and rugged as he was; and a severe attack of a complaint, to which persons of his age are often subject, came on. He experienced great sufferings, and, as he expressed it, 'was like a man on a rack.'

"I told my wife immediately that I was afraid that Willard had done me wrong; my pain continuing, and finding no relief, my jealousy continued. Mr. Lawson and others there were all amazed, and knew not what to do for me. There was a woman accounted skillful came hoping to help me, and after she had used means, she asked me whether none of those evil persons had done me damage. I said, I could not say they had, but I was sore afraid they had. She answered, she did fear so too—

As near as I remember. I lay in this case three or four days at Boston, and afterward, with the jeopardy of my life (as I thought) I came home."

"On his return, he found his grandson, the same Daniel who had warned Henry Wilkins against going to Boston with John Willard, on his death-bed, in great suffering. Another attack of his own malady came on. There was great consternation in the neighborhood, and throughout the village. The Devil and his confederates, it was thought, were making an awful onslaught upon the people of Will's Hill. Parris and others rushed to the scene. Mercy Lewis and Mary Walcot were carried up to tell who it was that was bewitching old Bray, and young Daniel, and others of the Wilkinses who had caught the contagion, and were experiencing or imagining all sorts of bodily ails. They were taken to the room where Daniel was approaching his death-agonies; and they both affirmed, that they saw the spectres of old Mrs. Buckley and John Willard 'upon his throat and upon his breast, and pressed him and choked him'; and the cruel operation, they insisted upon it, continued until the boy died.

"The girls were carried to the bedroom of the old man, who was in great suffering; and when they entered, the question was put by the anxious and excited friends in the chamber to Mercy Lewis, whether she saw anything. She said: 'Yes; they are looking for John Willard.' Presently she pretended to have caught sight of his apparition, and exclaimed: 'There he is upon his grandfather's belly.' This was thought wonderful indeed; for, as the old man says in a deposition he drew up afterwards, 'At that time I was in grievous pain in the small of my belly'."

Following the death of his grandson Daniel, "bewitched to death," and the hanging of his grandson John Willard on Gallow's Hill in Salem August 19, 1692, Bray apparently overcame his superstitions and his home became a haven for those fleeing persecution, notably a sister of Joseph Putnam, aunt of the famous Gen. Israel Putnam, while John Alden of Plymouth, son of the Pilgrim, likewise sought asylum in the neighborhood.

Strangely no record has been found to show the relationship of Willard and Bray. Willard had probably married one of Bray's granddaughters; probably a Nichols: he could not have been a blood relation.

The sons of Bray, who had never yielded to the local hysteria, were among the first to demand a cessation of the hallucinations and the retirement of Rev. Samuel Parris about whom the witchcraft delusion had revolved.

Bray's last home at Will's Hill was erected on the south side of what is now known as the Fuller burying ground, across the road, a short distance south of Middleton center, and here he passed his last years, less active physically probably, but until the last a powerful influence and highly respected in the community.

The final resting place of Bray Wilkins is not known. There is a tradition held by the older inhabitants of Middleton, that many, many years ago, there was what appeared to be a grave on the south side of Will's Hill, where Bray first cultivated the soil, and this, it is thought, was the burial place of the old Patriarch.

In his will, dated January 9, 1697, Bray called himself "an ancient." He died at Will's Hill on January 1, 1702, in his 92nd year. The will testifies to the keenness and foresight of a strong mind and character. His wife, living at the time of his signing his will, probably died soon after her husband, but no record has been found.

Bray and Hannah Wilkins had eight children, six sons and two daughters, all of whom lived to marry and raise families of their own. The first two children were born in Dorchester and the fifth child, the second daughter, is recorded as having been baptized in Dorchester, while the rest of the children were probably born in Salem. The following is the record of the several births and the story of their progeny is related in the succeeding pages:

Will of John Gengell

The following is the last will and testament of John Gengell partner and brother-in-law of Bray Wilkins, filed in the Suffolk county probate court in Boston, Mass., and recorded in vol. 11 page 61. The inventory of the estate made December 20, 1686 shows a value of 174 pounds, 16 shillings, 9 pence.

The will, as recorded on the books at the Suffolk county registry contains an error in that it omits "and to leadday knickels children forty shillings" which appears in item 5 of the original will as examined by the author.

LAST WILL OF JOHN GENGELL

I, John Gengell of Salem in New England, age 70 years, being sensible of my Death in respect of my age and being now in good health and perfect memory, Doe make this my last will and testament as followth:

Item. I bequeath my soul to God that gave it to me and my body to the earth and as for my outward state I dispose of as followeth:

It. 2. My will is that all my lawful debts should be paid.

It. 3. My will is that Jno. Wilkins should have my lott of upland that lys on the south side of the pond next Thomas Fuller's. This with my part of meadow at the end of the hill between the pond and the house.

It. 4. My will is that his[1] three sisters should have ten pounds. Eliza Bayle, forty shillings, Mary Wilkins three pounds and Abigail Wilkins five pound.

It. 5. I give to Bray Wilkins four sons Children to Samuel's child forty shillings to Thomas Wilkins forty shillings to Henry Wilkins children forty shillings and to Benja Wilkins children forty shillings and to leadday knickels children forty shillings and Margaret Knits Children forty shillings.

It. 6. Moreover, I give to the church of Dorchester five pound and to Mr. Lawson now minister at Salem village if he continue there till a church be gathered five pounds, all which Legacys are to be pd by my Executors out of my estate and therefore I Doe Constitute and appoint my loving friends and acquaintances Richd Gale Senr of Dorchester and Wm. Ireland

[1] Considerable importance attaches to this word. One writer has translated it as "my". It might also be "the". The writer, after examining the original, believes the word to be "his".

Senr and Jnoa Wilkins my Executs of this my last will and testament.

John Gengell his x mark, and a seal.

The words between the pond and house was written before sealed. Signed and sealed in the presence of us Aaron Way, Mary Way, Thomas Bale his B mark.

Before Joseph Dudley Esq.

Second Generation

Explanation—The system of numbering used in this book is this. The first number, in black type, indicates the personal number of the individual descendant. The second number, in Roman capitals, indicates the generation. The third number refers back to the parent of the descendant. In the case of the children of descendants, the third number has reference only to the order of birth of the children. An asterisk before a name indicates that such descendant will be treated in detail under his or her own number, later in the Genealogy.

2 II 1 SAMUEL WILKINS, son of Bray and Hannah (Gengell) Wilkins, was born in 1636 in Dorchester, Mass., and was baptized in the First Church in Dorchester on Nov. 5, 1639. He married Jane ————, who was a "widow," in 1696. He removed to Salem with his parents and was appointed a tything man in that town in 1679. Samuel was one of those foremost in circulating a petition calling for the retirement of Rev. Samuel Parris as pastor of the Salem Village church after the witchcraft controversy, and the records of the church contain, among the obituaries, the following notice in the handwriting of Rev. Mr. Parris: "Dec. 20, 1688. Samuel Wilkins, a very naughty man and dyed very hopefully, aged 52 years."

Child:

5 II 1 THOMAS WILKINS, son of Bray and Hannah (Gengell) Wilkins, was baptized Mar. 16, 1647 in Salem and died in Oct. 1717. He married, May 1667, in Salem, Hannah Nichols. She was a sister of John Nichols who married her husband's sister, Lydia Wilkins (No. 4). She was the daughter of William Nichols[1], b. 1599, d. 1695, and Mary (Southwick) Trask. Thomas was made a freeman in Salem Mar. 22, 1689-90. His wife survived him.

Children: (Born in Salem)

31 III 1 Hannah, b Nov. 14, 1669. May have been second wife of Nehemiah Wilkins (No. 52).

32 III 2 Thomas, Jr., b May 26, 1673. m Elizabeth Towne.

33 III 3 Elizabeth, b 1676. (Found in some lists.)

37 III 7 Henry. (Found in some lists.)

6 II 1 MARGARET WILKINS, daughter of Bray and Hannah (Gengell) Wilkins, was baptized in Dorchester, Mass., Dec. 12 (10), 1648-9. She married, probably about 1668, Philip Knight, who was born in 1646.

Children: (Born in Topsfield, Mass.)

38 III 1 Philip, b Dec. 27, 1669. d Aug. 19, 1696.

[1] William Nichols was granted 38 acres in Salem Nov. 12, 1638, removed to Topsfield and built a home in what was later Middleton. "He builded 20 rods of wall in one day, so his nephew Capt. Samuel Wilkins said."—Records of Mrs. M. J. Averill.

39 III 2 Margaret, b Aug. 31, 1671. m Mar. 28, 1716, Francis Elliott of Boxford, Mass.

40 III 3 Rebekah [1], m Nov. 15, 1711, Nicholas Bayley of Salem.

41 III 4 Abigail, b Mar. 25, 1672.

42 III 5 Margery, b Nov. 15, 1674.

43 III 6 Elizabeth, b Jan. 25, 1676. m Oct. 20, 1696, Samuel Towne.

44 III 7 Mary, b Nov. 12, 1680. m Aug. 1, 1700, William Hobbs.

45 III 8 Joseph, b Mar. 12, 1683-4. m Feb. 1, 1710, Hannah Lewis of Greenland.

7 II 1 HENRY WILKINS, son of Bray and Hannah (Gengell) Wilkins, was baptized July (Jan.) 1, 1651 in Salem and died in Dec. 1737-8. He was married twice and perhaps three times. Salem vital statistics state the wife of Henry was "Rebecca", born 1649 and died Apr. 9, 1689, or Apr. 4, 1690. Various family records state the wives of Henry were (1) Sarah and (2) Ruth. Undoubtedly Ruth was his wife when he died for her name is signed to land transfers after Henry's death as "widow," on May 24, 1693. He was made a freeman of Salem Mar. 22, 1689-90 and is reported to have gone to Boxford to live in 1691.

Henry lived in Salem Village (Danvers) during the witchcraft excitement and, like most of his brothers, had little sympathy with the "goings-on." In the preceding story of the life of his father, Bray Wilkins, is recorded an interesting event in his life and the story of the death of his son, Daniel, "bewitched to death" as claimed by Rev. Samuel Parris.

Henry Wilkins, in June 1680, was lame and disabled in body, according to church records, and he was excused from attending upon the usual functions of the church; and was "dismissed" from attending sessions of the foot company and from attending common training.

Henry's will was signed Nov. 4, 1737 and probated (No. 29,892) on Jan. 9, 1737-8.

Children: (Born in Salem, order uncertain)

46 III 1 Samuel, b 1673. Was one who gave testimony against John Willard in the witchcraft hearings of 1692.

47 III 2 Daniel, b 1675. "Bewitched to death May 16, 1692."

48 III 3 Elizabeth, b 1676. bp Jan. 4, 1684. m John Carrell.

49 III 4 Rebecca, bp Jan. 4, 1684. m Philip Mackintire.

50 III 5 Henry, bp Jan. 4, 1684. m (1) Sarah Wilkins (2) Mary Lewis.

[1] Rebekah is included in some family records as a child of Philip and Margaret.

51 III 6 Aquila, bp Jan. 4, 1684. m Lydia Nichols.
52 III 7 Nehemiah, b Aug. 12, 1683. m (1) Elizabeth Guppy, (2) Hannah Wilkins.
53 III 8 Susannah, b Oct. 13, 1684. m Isaac Wilkins (See No. 36).
54 III 9 John, b Nov. 14, 1686. bp Jan. 14, 1687. m Abigail Wilkins (No. 63).

56 III 11 Ruth, bp July 13, 1690. d Dec. 14, 1695, Salem.
57 III 12 Child, bp Aug. 17, 1690.

8 II 1 BENJAMIN WILKINS, son of Bray and Hannah (Gengell) Wilkins, was born in Salem and died in the autumn of 1715. Benjamin was made a freeman of Salem Mar. 22, 1689-90. He served in King Phillip's War and was in the company of Captain Nicholas Paige which went to Mt. Hope June 27, 1675. He was out of sympathy with the witchcraft delusions of Rev. Samuel Parris and his followers and was a member of the committee appointed Nov. 19, 1697 to secure a successor to Mr. Parris. He married, June 3, 1677, Priscilla Baxter, who was born in June 1652 and survived her husband. She was the daughter of Daniel and Elizabeth Baxter. Baxter was a seaman who "Propounded" himself an inhabitant of Salem July 16, 1638 and was granted five acres in Salem Feb. 4, 1638-9. He was in Salem as late as 1653. The will of Benjamin Wilkins was signed Aug. 15, 1715 and was probated (No. 29872) Dec. 29, 1715.

Children: (Born in Salem)

58 III 1 Priscilla, b Feb. 24, 1678. d Oct. 24, 1690.
59 III 2 Benjamin, b Dec. 3, 1679. m Marjery Roff.
60 III 3 Anna, b Oct. 31, 1681. m (1) Ebenezer Foster, (2) Isaac Wilkins.
61 III 4 Jonathan, b Feb. 24, 1683. m Hannah Roff.

Children: (Born in Salem)

67 III 1 Margaret, b July 16, 1685.

68 III 2 Elizabeth, b July 21, 1687. m Nov. 22, 1716, Jonathan Legroe. They had a child, Elizabeth, born Sept. 14, 1717, in Salem.

69 III 3 James, b Mar. 10, 1689-90

Third Generation

10 III 2 SAMUEL WILKINS, yeoman, son of Samuel and Jane (——————) Wilkins, was born in Salem, Mass. He married (1) Sarah ————; (2) Feb. 1, 1698-9, (?) Priscilla Parker. Removed to Newport, R. I., before 1711. No records of the family have been found in Rhode Island.

Children: (Born in Salem, Mass.)

70 IV 1 Daughter, b Aug. 11, 1693.
71 IV 2 Son, b Oct. 10, 1695.

11 III 3 JOHN WILKINS, son of John and Lydia (————) Wilkins, was born in Salem Jan. 20, 1688. He was published to marry Oct. 24, 1713, Mary Goodale (or Goodell), daughter of Nehemiah Goodell, born Oct. 17, 1686. John Wilkins went to Marlborough, Mass., with two sons in 1740. He signed his will Mar. 12, 1750 and it was probated (No. 29902) Jan. 15, 1753. Two of his children are recorded as being born in Danvers, indicating it was his residence for a time. The vital statistics of Salem record three children other than those given below, namely; a son bp May 18, 1712; Jonathan, bp June 9, 1712 and d aged 14 years; and a child bp May 1714, which do not agree with the date of marriage. The following is probably the correct record of their children:

Children:

72 IV 1 Edward, bp Oct. 16, 1715, Danvers. m Lydia Smith.
73 IV 2 Samuel, bp July 21, 1717. d 1790.
74 IV 3 Josiah, b July 1, 1718. bp Aug. 10, 1718, Danvers. m Lois Bush.
75 IV 4 John, b Dec. 29, 1720.
76 IV 5 Edward Nichols, b Nov. 14, 1723. bp Apr. 19, 1724. d Nov. 27, 1763.
77 IV 6 Daniel, m Sept. 9, 1736, Sarah Fuller.

13 III 3 DANIEL WILKINS, Sr., son of John and Lydia (————) Wilkins, was born May 12, 1692 in Salem. Yeoman. His will was signed Feb. 23, 1739 and probated (No. 29877) June 2, 1740. His estate was appraised June 12, 1740 by Daniel Jr., Benjamin and Isaac Wilkins, all of Middleton. Francis Carrell is mentioned as a son-in-law. His land adjoined that of Daniel, Jonathan and Stephen Wilkins. His wife may have been Mary Bailey, who filed intentions Oct. 13, 1714 to marry Daniel Wilkins. It is recorded that she married (2) April 24, 1730, Ebenezer, son of Henry Wilkins, but Daniel lived nine years after this date. The children given below, with the exception of Jonathan, are mentioned in Daniel's will.

17 III 3 MERCY (MARY) WILKINS, daughter of John and Lydia (———) Wilkins, was born in Salem Mar. 13, 1701. She married, Oct. 21, 1725, Benjamin Cheever, weaver, of Salem, baptized July 6, 1701. He was a grandson of Ezekiel Cheever, born in London, Eng., Jan. 25, 1614, who settled in Boston in 1637; removed to New Haven, then to Ipswich, then to Charlestown, then to Boston, where he died Aug. 21, 1708. Benjamin and Mary Cheever were married in Middleton, according to records in Amherst (Souhegan West) where they took up their residence early in 1740. Mary probably died in the same year, as Cheever married (2) Sept. 18, 1740, Rachel Stacey. Mr. Cheever kept a shop in Amherst, N. H.

[1] Salem VR also show the birth of David Wilkins, son of John and Betty (Southwick), 1703-4; married, Mar. 17, 1736, Elizabeth Bailey, born Sept. 17, 1714, in Middleton, sister of Rebecca Bailey (who married Phineas Wilkins (No. 125), son of David's cousin, Bray Wilkins). He was a farmer and died in 1741, his will being probated (No. 29880) Aug. 24, 1741, his widow Elizabeth being executrix. There is record of a son to David and Elizabeth, Nicholas, bp 1738 in Middleton. The author has been unable to reconcile the conflicting records of the two Davids.

97 IV 9 John, b Mar. 16, 1752.[1]

19 III 3 JOSEPH WILKINS, son of John and Betty (Southwick) Wilkins, was born between 1703 and 1710 and baptized in Salem June 7, 1719. He married, Feb. 1, 1731-2, Rebecca Yell, in Salem.

20 III 3 SOLOMON WILKINS, son of John and Betty (Southwick) Wilkins, was born in Salem about 1710 and baptized June 7, 1719. He married, Oct. 29, 1730, Patience Lambert and lived in Middleton.

On May 20, 1740 Solomon Wilkins was "given leave by the town of Amherst, N. H., to take up sixty acres of land adjoining the falls in the Souhegan river, the land to lay square, on condition that he built a good grist-mill near the falls, kept it in repair, and at all times supplied the inhabitants of the township with meal for the lawful and customary toll, when they brought their corn to be ground. The grant was to be forfeited, in case he should fail to grind and supply the town with meal forthwith,—unless prevented by some extraordinary casualty,—or if he should wholly neglect to grind for the space of eight months; but, provided he gave an answer to the clerk by the 20th of June next following, accepting the conditions of the grant, and had the mill ready to grind by the twentieth day of May, 1741, in the meantime giving bonds for performance of the contract, the grant would hold good." [2]

Wilkins seems not to have accepted the offer as on April 30, 1741 the proposition was accepted by John Shepard of Concord, Mass., who built a mill "and became a useful and honored citizen of the town."

Shepard's son married Mercy Wilkins (No. 81).

106 IV 4 Hannah, b Oct. 19, 1741.

32 III 5 THOMAS WILKINS, Jr., son of Thomas and Hannah (Nichols) Wilkins, was born May 26, 1673, in Salem, Mass., and died in 1726 in Boxford. He married, Dec. 19 (Aug. 22), 1694, Elizabeth Towne of Topsfield, daughter of William Towne, born Nov. 2, 1669. They lived sometime in Topsfield but most of their children are recorded as born in Boxford. Thomas Wilkins was a selectman in Boxford in 1707 and 1720 and one of the proprietors of the farms at Will's Hill, Middleton. It is of unusual note that five of the children of Thomas and Hannah, and two of their grandchildren, married members of the Upton family. Four Wilkins brothers and sisters below married four Upton brothers and sisters, the Uptons being of Reading. (See Wilkins-Upton chart.)

Children: (Born in Boxford section of Middleton. Order of last three uncertain.)

65 III 8 DANIEL WILKINS, son of Benjamin and Priscilla (Baxter) Wilkins, was born in Salem, June 28 (Aug. 6), 1693. He was a husbandman and lived in Middleton. His will was signed Jan. 4, 1742-3 and probated (No. 29878) Apr. 11, 1743. His "loving brother," Isaac Wilkins, was named as executor. (Isaac had married for his second wife Daniel's sister, Anna (Wilkins) Foster.) Daniel Wilkins married, Dec. 19, 1721, Mary Hutchinson. Data collected by Martha J. Averill, now at the Essex Institute, state that the children left by Daniel and Mary Hutchinson Wilkins "at the death of a daughter in 1743" were Abigail, Sarah, Rachel, Priscilla and Daniel. Daniel's will mentions Daniel, Abigail and Sarah as his children

"under age" and also Priscilla and Rachel, and gives his wife's maiden name as "Mary." Mary (Hutchinson) Wilkins married (2) Nov. 29, 1743, Edward Putnam, Jr. She was the daughter of John Hutchinson of Danvers.

H., Aug. 27, 1832. He served during the latter part of the French and Indian Wars and was at Ticonderoga in 1758. On June 16, 1775 [1], he marched a company from Middleton to Charlestown, arriving early in the morning. The colonel of the regiment refused to allow the company to pass over the Neck and join the force on Bunker Hill. Soon after that battle he was commissioned a lieutenant in the Continental army and spent eight months on Winter Hill, Somerville. Later he was commissioned captain and went to Ticonderoga. He returned to Middleton in 1777. He had married, April 11, 1766, Anna Berry at Middleton. About 1778 he bought a farm in Merrimack, N. H., on the Souhegan river, three and a half miles from its mouth, and lived there the rest of his days. In the early days, before there was a church building in Merrimack, religious meetings were held in Stephen's home. The farm remained in the family continuously until 1848. Mrs. Wilkins died Apr. 22, 1820.

139 IV 35 MARGARET WILKINS, daughter of Joseph and Margaret (Nichols) Wilkins, was born May 17, 1728 in Middleton, Mass., and baptized Sept. 15, 1728. She married, Apr. 11, 1753, at Middleton, Elisha Upton, who was born in North Reading, Mass., May 18, 1732, being her cousin and son of Joseph and Mary (Wilkins) Upton; and brother of Hannah Upton, who married, Jan. 27, 1767, Benjamin Wilkins of Middleton. Elisha answered the Lexington Alarm and is said to have remained some time in the Revolutionary army, being in several battles. Margaret, whose name is also spelled "Marjory" and "Margery," died of "canker" Oct. 3, 1769. Elisha married a second wife, Sarah Guilford, on Nov. 20, 1770, and removed to Amherst, N. H., in the spring of 1781, and died at Bow, N. H., in 1805. All the children of Margaret and Elisha, except the first, died before Mr. Upton's second marriage.

140 IV 36 TIMOTHY WILKINS, son of Isaac and Susannah (Wilkins) Wilkins, was baptized July 3, 1709 in Middleton, Mass. He married (int. filed) Nov. 26, 1730, Anna, daughter of James Smith of Salem (Danvers section). She was baptized May 31, 1713. Timothy bought a 112-acre farm, a portion of the Blood farm, in what is now the center of Carlisle, then a part of Billerica, Mass., in 1739, and still later a part of Concord. Deeding his Carlisle holdings to his sons, Timothy, Jr., and Isaac, with a reservation of a portion as a life interest, Timothy, Sr., removed to Hillsborough, N. H., in 1764, where he became one of the original incorporators of the town and was for many years a most prominent citizen. He was appointed on a committee on roads, Feb. 15, 1770 and was the town's first moderator in 1774; signed a call for a church meeting in 1772; was named on a committee of three to build a church, Apr. 15, 1774; on a committee to view ground for a burial place Apr. 27, 1774; was appointed on the committee on safety June 14, 1775 and was on the Larum List of men left in Hillsborough in 1776. He signed the Association Test in 1776 and also a call to Rev. Mr. Barnes to settle over the parish in Hillsborough in 1777. Receipts (preserved in Carlisle, Mass.,) disclose also that he served for a time as treasurer of the town. He was listed among the taxpayers of the town as late as 1782, soon after which he returned to Carlisle, Mass., to live out the remainder of his days, where he died, and is believed to have been buried in Acton, Mass. His widow married (2) Deacon Parmenter of Antrim, N. H., and died there. Timothy Wilkins had been preceded to Hillsborough by his son Andrew and also settled in the same town was his brother Nehemiah, and still later came Asaph (Asa) Wilkins, a son of Daniel and Mary (Hutchinson) Wilkins, of Amherst, and all were prominent in town affairs. A paper, giving up all rights, for a consideration, in the real estate of "our father," James Smith of Danvers, was signed Dec. 11, 1776 by Lydia Wilkins, a widow, and Anna, of Concord. (In collection of Mrs. M. J. Averill). Timothy donated land in the center of Carlisle in 1758 on which to build a church. He was the probable owner of the English harpsichord at the Concord, Mass., Antiquarian Soc. house.

A tradition states "He died between January and October 1791 'from being melted at a brush fire'."

142 IV 36 NEHEMIAH WILKINS, son of Isaac and Susannah (Wilkins) Wilkins, was baptized May 6, 1716, having been born in Middleton, Mass. He married, June 2, 1741, in King's Chapel, Boston, Hannah Watts. He was employed as a cordwainer. Essex Institute records, book 132, page 214, state: "Nehemiah Wilkins of Boston, cordwainer, and wife, Hannah, convey to Timothy Wilkins of Concord and his wife Anna, 'our share in one half of the estate of our late father Isaac Wilkins of Middleton, deceased, which was to be paid to us in four years after his decease. Mar. 21, 1753.' Ack. in Boston by Nehemiah Wilkins. Mar. 22, 1753." Nehemiah probably spent some time with his brother Timothy in Hillsboro Bridge, N. H., as the Hillsboro records make frequent reference to Timothy and Nehemiah between 1772 and 1782.

She married, June 27, 1743, in Middleton, William Cod, an emigrant from Ireland who settled first in Middleton and went to Souhegan West about 1746. The births of two children are recorded in Middleton. Probably others were born in Souhegan West of which there is no record. Abigail is erroneously called "Sarah" in the History of Amherst. She was a cousin of Rev. Daniel Wilkins of Amherst.

[1] John Washer had been constantly worrying his mother with talk of running away to sea. A sea captain friend of Mrs. Washer offered to cure the son of his ideas if she would let him take the boy on a sea voyage to America. Young John went along and, sure enough, when he reached Boston he had had enough of the sea. At the first opportunity he ran away into the town, hotly pursued by the captain. Bolting into a private house, little John found an aged lady sitting knitting in a front room. He begged her to hide him, as the man chasing him would kill him if caught. The old lady told the boy to crawl under her skirts. When the captain turned up shortly, demanding the boy he had seen run into the house, the old lady said: "If there is any boy in here you can have him if you can find him." Needless to say the captain did not find the boy and had to sail home without him.

He married Agnes, who died Jan. 19, 1808, aged 69 years. He had one son, Henry, Jr., who practiced medicine in Mont Vernon and married, Feb. 19, 1796, Rebecca Langdell, who survived him; also a daughter Catherine who lived but two years and three months. Henry, Jr., died July 31, 1806, aged 29, and Henry W. Sr., died in Amherst March 14, 1812.

163 IV 51 URIAH WILKINS, son of Aquila and Lydia (Nichols) Wilkins, was born in Salem, Mass., and baptized Sept. 10, 1708. He married Lydia ———[1] who survived him, living until as late as 1764. She married (2) Jonathan Wilkins, 3rd, on Dec. 5, 1750, in Middleton. She had six children by Uriah and a daughter and a son by Jonathan. Uriah lived in Salem and then Middleton and died Mar. 6, 1750. He died intestate and settlement of his affairs is recorded in probate court number 29934 at Salem.

According to a letter of Mrs. Higgins in the files of Mrs. M. J. Averill at the Essex Institute in Salem: "Uriah got hurt and old Dr. Ball (Bell) tended him. The Dr. told the minister he was sick and the latter came up to see him and found him dead. The Rev. came up to Benj. Wilkins and said: 'The great Uriah is dead.' He was tall."

of Bray Wilkins on both his father's and mother's side. He married, Sept. 9, 1736, Sarah Fuller of Middleton, the latter a descendant of Thomas Fuller who came from England in 1638. They settled in Souhegan West (Amherst, N. H.) about 1740. Rev. Mr. Wilkins had graduated from Harvard in 1736 and he went to Amherst to assume the pastorate of the church there, being the first settled minister in the town. When he began preaching in 1741 his church numbered but 14 families with five males. He was endowed with a venerable presence, commanding voice and emphatic delivery and served the community as its spiritual leader for 42 years, being most influential in all activities of the town. During his pastorate in 1774 a new church building was erected, the second in the town, which still stands. Rev. Mr. Wilkins died Feb. 11, 1783 and his widow Apr. 23, 1790. A monument, with a notable enscription (See Appendix B), stands over their graves. Their descendants, through many generations, have been most distinguished.

167 IV 54 JOHN WILKINS, son of John and Abigail (Wilkins) Wilkins, was baptized May 18, 1712 in Middleton. Not only was he a great grandson of Bray Wilkins on both his father's and mother's side, but he married a great granddaughter of Bray when, on Apr. 6, 1738, he married Naomi (No. 175), daughter of Benjamin and Marjery (Roff) Wilkins. John Wilkins died sometime in 1779 and there was trouble over his will. He had signed the document Nov. 4, 1778 and it was offered for probate (No. 29905) on June 7, 1779. Rev. Daniel Wilkins, brother of John, appeared and protested the filing of the will and a Mary Wilkins testified John's mind was wandering when the will was signed. An order revoking the probate of the will by the judge of probate was issued Feb. 28, 1780

OLD MEETING HOUSE, AMHERST, N. H.

This, the Second Meeting House in Amherst, was dedicated January 19, 1774, and its pastor was Rev. Daniel Wilkins, a great grandson of Bray Wilkins. Rev. Mr. Wilkins was the first settled minister in Amherst, where he presided over the local parish from 1741 until his death in 1783, being the first to preach in the above edifice. Among his parishioners were many descendants of Bray Wilkins. The church building is still in use.

On August 26, 1771, the town voted, "that said Committee procure New England rum for the raising of the meeting house frame in this town for such as shall do the labor of raising, and for all spectators, according to their discretion, not exceeding eight barrels." Voted also, "that said Committee provide for the raising of said house one barrel of sugar (brown) for the use of the laborers and spectators, to be distributed according to the discretion of said committee."

but on Sept. 5, 1780 the order was vacated and letters of administration given Benjamin Wilkins, a cousin of the deceased. Just why there should have been a controversy does not seem clear as John willed his property to his wife, Naomi, daughter Naomi, and his cousins, Benjamin, Jr., and David, both of Amherst, the latter receiving 100 pounds.

168 IV 54 SAMUEL WILKINS, son of John and Abigail (Wilkins) Wilkins, was baptized Apr. 1714. He married Dec. 6, 1781 Mary Hutchinson, who was born in 1756. She outlived her husband and married (2) Feb. 6, 1791, Nathaniel Sherman (Shearman). Samuel's will was dated June 16, 1785 and probated Apr. 6, 1790. His estate, "after his wife's death," was to go to "my late brother Daniel Wilkins' children, except Abigail Peabody, to whom but one-third as much as either of her brothers." He lived in Middleton.

171 IV 55 AQUILA WILKINS, son of Ebenezer and Mary (Bailey) Wilkins, was born Aug. 5, 1736 in Middleton, Mass. Aquila was a true pioneer patriot. He saw service in the French and Indian War and the Revolutionary War. When he was through with his fighting he went up north into the New Hampshire wilderness, selected a sightly spot under the shadow of Mt. Kearsarge in North Sutton, built a log cabin, cleared the land, and became one of the original settlers of the town.

The earliest record of Aquila's war service is May 4, 1773, when he is credited with service of 3 months, 4 days.

The Revolutionary War record [1] runs as follows: Corporal, Capt. Asa Prince's Co., which marched on alarm of Apr. 19, 1775. Service, 2 days. Also, Capt. Prince's Co., Col. Mansfield's regt., payroll, June 8, 1775. Also, sergeant, same company and regiment, muster rolls Aug. 1, 1775. Also, Capt. Prince's Co. Col., Ia. Hutchinson (19th Regt.) return of Oct. 6, 1775. Also joined Capt. Job Whipple's Co., Col. R. Putnam's regt. 3 years. Sergt. in Capt. Shay's Co., Col. R. Putnam's 4th regt. Also at Albany, N. Y. scription, in 1779, is given as "43 years of age, 5 feet 10 inches tall, light complexion."

Aquila followed the life of a farmer after he settled on his North Sutton mountain side, and spent the remainder of his days there, his name being listed as a taxpayer as late as 1800.

Aquila had married, in Middleton, Lucy, daughter of Cooley and Sarah (Burnham) Smith, who was born June 20, 1740, in Middleton. This alliance was one of ten marriages between the children and grandchildren of Cooley Smith and members of the Wilkins family, depicted in the Smith-Wilkins chart on the opposite page. Several of Aquila's children married into prominent families in Sutton and New London. A daughter, Ednah, married John Mills, Jr., of Amherst, N. H., lived there until the death of her husband and came back to her father's home to marry, second, a New London resident.

[1] The Upton Memorial records that David Upton b 1734, and his nephew, David Upton, b 1745, both married an Elizabeth Wilkins, the uncle marrying Elizabeth b 1739 and the nephew Elizabeth b 1741. Singularly both marriages took place on the same month and day, March 20, the first in 1764 and the second in 1776. There is available data about David (b 1734) and Elizabeth (b 1739), but nothing more than the Upton genealogy about the second marriage.

He attended Dartmouth[2] college and graduated with the class of 1779, intending to enter the ministry. He went to Concord N. H., and preached as a candidate in the Old South Parish church in 1786. He received a call to become the pastor of the church but declined it and abandoned a ministerial career, bought a farm and became a farmer. His property adjoined that of the Countess of Rumford. He married, July 3, 1787, Sarah Hall, daughter of Jeremiah and Esther Whittemore (Woodman) Hall, born Aug. 29, 1770. Jonathan Wilkins was a selectman of Concord in 1801, 3, 4 and 5; justice of the peace from 1802; frequent moderator at town meetings; clerk of the church in 1797 and deacon from 1811. He was on a committee to build a bridge at Boscawen; and June 18, 1813 on a committee to build a poorhouse. They had twelve children, all of whom "grew up." 198 V 74 LEVI WILKINS, son of Josiah and Lois (Bush) Wilkins, was born Aug. 3, 1758 in Marlborough, Mass.

[1] Town of Pembroke, N. H., history erroneously claims Jonathan was descended from Richard Wilkins, the second postmaster of Boston, some of whose descendants went to live in Marlborough, Mass.

[2] Town of Marlborough, Mass., history erroneously states Jonathan Wilkins graduated from Harvard in 1780.

He enlisted for the Revolutionary War in the company of Captain William Morse, regiment of Col. Jonathan Read, Oct. 2, 1777 and was discharged Nov. 8, 1777. The company marched from Marlborough northward to assist the army under Gen. Gates.[1] He married, Oct. 19, 1784, Hepsibah Darling of Marlborough, who was born in 1750 and died Mar. 5, 1838. She married, Dec. 15, 1785, John Bruce, son of William and Abigail Bruce, born in Marlborough Aug. 31 1757. He graduated from Dartmouth College in 1781 and received the A. M. degree in 1795. He studied for the ministry in Fitzwilliam, N. H., with Rev. Benjamin Brigham, and became the first settled minister in the Northwest Parish of Amherst, now Mont Vernon, N. H., in 1784, and served there continuously until his sudden death from apoplexy Mar. 12, 1809. They had seven children and their descendants became prominent in various fields of activity. Upon the death of Rev. John Bruce, his widow married (2) Major William Bradford of Mont Vernon, one of the prominent officers in the Revolutionary War, being his second wife. He commanded under Gen. Miller at Lundy's Lane. Lois died in Mont Vernon, Feb. 12, 1828, and Major Bradford died in Barre, Vt., Oct. 25, 1816, aged 63 years.

OLD MEETING HOUSE, MONT VERNON, N. H.

Built on a rocky ledge, 1000 feet above sea level, and visible for scores of miles in all directions, this is the ancient church, erected in 1781, whose first settled minister was Rev. John Bruce, whose wife was Lois Wilkins, great, great granddaughter of Bray Wilkins. Rev. Mr. Bruce was the pastor from 1784 until his death in 1809, and among his parishioners were many members of the Wilkins family.

The church building was moved across the street to its present site in 1837 and a tower and new front added. It is now used as a town hall.

212 V 94 DANIEL WILKINS, son of David, Jr., and Molly Harris, was born in Middleton, Mass., May 14, 1769. He went to Lewiston, Me., with his parents, about 1792. Daniel walked from Lewiston Plantation through a solid growth of wood, by spotted trees, located a claim, made a small clearing, built a log cabin, and returned home. The next year he and his wife, Jane Tarr, of Lewiston, walked again to his new claim, leading a cow and carrying a bag of meal. "Corn mush" was their sole diet before the season was over, of which they became "heartily sick." Shortly after Daniel erected a frame house, the first one in the settlement, and became a prosperous farmer. The settlement which grew up about them became the town of Greene, Maine. He died Oct. 6, 1853 and his wife Feb. 14, 1847, the latter aged 79 years.

time before Jan. 1, 1775, and, like his brother, answered the Lexington Alarm and marched from Hollis Apr. 19, 1775.[1] Search of Middleton and Hollis records fail to reveal the dates of his marriage and births of his children. Records in Hollis give the birth of an Isaac Wilkins, who later married Lucy (Wilkins) French, the latter born in 1779. Assuming Isaac was about the same age as his wife, he may well have been the son of Israel and is so tentatively recorded below.

Child: (Born in Hollis, N. H.)

265 V 123 BRAY WILKINS, son of Israel and Margaret (Case) Wilkins, was born Apr. 20, 1729 in Middleton, Mass. He married, Apr. 11 (12), 1750, in Middleton, his second cousin, Lucy Wilkins (No. 247), daughter of Hezekiah and Mehitable (Upton) Wilkins, born Mar. 16, 1729, in Middleton. Bray with his brother Israel, went to Hollis, N. H., to live and they are recorded on the tax lists of Jan. 1, 1775 as living on the "west side" (territory now included in Milford, N. H.). Bray responded to the Lexington Alarm of Apr. 19, 1775 and marched to Lexington in the company of Captain Dow, serving ten days.[2] He enlisted Aug. 1, 1775 in the company of Capt. Archelaus Towne, regiment of Col. Ebenezer Bridge, for eight months and was made sergeant, going to Amherst to enlist.[3] The regiment later was made the 27th Massachusetts, commanded by Col. Hutchinson, and in which Bray Wilkins served as sergeant at the Battle of Bunker Hill.[4] He was on duty at the siege of Boston. According to one muster roll he served five months and seven days, while another record states he served eight months "at Cambridge." Bray's name also appears in Capt. William Harper's company, Col. Isaac Wyman's regiment, mustered in July 16, 1776, to reinforce the army in Canada. Also Bray Wilkins was on the payroll for Capt. William Boye's company, Col. Kelley's regiment, for the expedition to Rhode Island, Aug. 7, 1778.

Later Bray Wilkins went into the navy and served on board the frigate Hague, Captain John Manly, and a receipt dated June 12, 1783, accounts for wages paid him for services to May 20, 1783.

278 V 130 ABIJAH WILKINS, son of Joshua and Ruth (Wilkins) Wilkins, was born Oct. 7, 1751 in Middleton, Mass. He married (1) May 7, 1772, Lucy Averill, born Dec. 18, 1752, and (2) Sept. 30, 1785, Sarah Farmer. His first wife is thought to be of the family of John Averill who went from Middleton to Amherst (Mont Vernon) in 1763.

Abijah came with his parents from Middleton, Mass., to Amherst, N. H., and settled in the Northwest Parish, now Mont Vernon, where he was a foremost and active citizen throughout his life. He is supposed to have served in the Revolutionary War. The history of Amherst prints his name in capitals among those subscribing to the pledge to take arms against the British, to indicate he served in the army, but no record of his service has been found. He was one of those who petitioned to have the Northwest Parish set apart from Amherst in June 1781; was elected an assessor June 24, 1781; was on a committee on seats in the new meeting house in Amherst Mar. 9, 1778; on a petition to protest the seating of Rev. Jeremiah Barnard, Dec. 23, 1779, and also a petition protesting his ordination; was selectman of Amherst in 1789, 1790 and 1791; and was one of the original incorporators of Mont Vernon in 1803 when the Northwest Parish finally severed itself from Amherst. He died in Mont Vernon, July 1833. Sarah, his second wife, died Feb. 8, 1818, aged 59 years.

297 V 133 JOSEPH WILKINS, son of Joseph and Abigail (Burt) Wilkins, was born in 1745 in Middleton, Mass. He was one of the original proprietors of Lyndeborough, N. H. At a meeting of the proprietors in Salem, Mass., Apr. 21, 1768, an allowance was given Joseph Wilkins for home lots previously awarded him which were short of measure. According to the History of Lyndeborough, Wilkins was short about nine acres and he was given 29 acres to make good his shortage, the committee explaining the excess by stating "the last mentioned tract is excessive poor." The report of the committee was approved in December 1782 and the tracts assigned. Joseph Wilkins signed a petition June 28, 1763 for the incorporation of Lyndeborough as a separate township and another petition Dec. 12, 1785 protesting that the proposed meeting house was not large enough. He served in the Revolutionary War, being a member of the Third Regiment, commanded by Colonel Scammel, in 1777.[2] He moved to Reading, Vt., in December 1783 and later to Cavendish, Vt. He died Aug. 9, 1820 in

334 V 166 DEACON SAMUEL WILKINS, son of Rev. Daniel and Sarah (Fuller) Wilkins, was born Jan. 8, 1742 in Amherst, N. H. (His birth is also recorded as having taken place in Middleton, Mass.) In his early manhood in Amherst he was one of the champions of the town in wrestling and running matches. It is said that "but few could be found that could lay him on his back." When a new church was being built in Amherst for his father in 1771, and during the relaxation from the work of "raising" the structure, running and wrestling matches were in order. In most of them, if tradition is to be believed, "Sam" Wilkins, the minister's son, afterward deacon of the church, was the chief champion. His greatest exploit on the occasion of the church raising was that of running a short distance with the chairman of the building committee, who "weighed about the sixth of a ton advoidupois, upon his shoulders."

Deacon Wilkins was for many years one of the leading citizens of the town, and filled many important offices. He served as moderator of the annual town meeting for eight years, was one of the board of selectmen fifteen years, town clerk ten years and representative in the general court one year. He was a deacon of the church for 42 years.

One of his many duties was to act as justice in the local court. One John Totman having been brought before him for stealing a felt hat and surtout, valued at twenty-seven shillings, and pleading guilty, Justice Wilkins sentenced him to be whipped thirteen stripes on the naked back and to pay the owner of the stolen property five pounds, seventeen shillings, being three times its value. The sentence was carried out.

New fangled ideas were not tolerated and when Robert Fletcher and others, in 1792, were vaccinated for small pox, Deacon Wilkins served on a committee "to examine into their conduct, and to prevent others from doing the same if in their power."

Deacon Wilkins and others in 1797, organized and incorporated the Amherst Library Association, and the society continued in existence for 35 years.

In his old age, notwithstanding his stalwart youth, Deacon Wilkins became quite infirm and for a long time was unable to walk or even rise without assistance. In his infirmity he was tenderly cared for by his sons, David and Thomas.

Deacon Wilkins married (1) Feb. 28, 1769, in Tyngsborough, Mass., Abigail Farwell, born Apr. 13, 1747 in Dunstable and died Feb. 4, 1786. He married (2) Nov. 24, 1788, Dorcas Towne of Amherst, who was born Nov. 10, 1755 and died July 4, 1839.

335 V 166 CAPTAIN DANIEL WILKINS, Jr., son of Rev. Daniel and Sarah (Fuller) Wilkins, was born in Amherst, N. H., about 1744, and was a distinguished officer in the Revolutionary War [1]. He served as first lieutenant in the company of Captain Crosby at Bunker Hill. Later he was captain of a company, composed mostly of men of Amherst, in the regiment of Colonel Bedel. Captain Wilkins' company was included among those disgracefully surrendered to the British and Indians at "The Cedars" in Canada in May 1776, the story of which has become an epic in New Hampshire military history. (See Appendix C.) In the company of Captain Wilkins were his brother Andrew Wilkins (No. 338), Sylvester Wilkins (No. 280) and Daniel Wilkins, 3rd (No. 608). Captain Wilkins died of small pox on his way back from The Cedars to Crown Point, at Chimney Point, N. Y., in July 1776, shortly after the exchange.

Captain Wilkins married, about 1767, Tabitha Weston of Amherst, the daughter of Ebenezer Weston of Reading, Mass. the latter having been born in Reading Jan. 28, 1702 and settled in Souhegan West in 1752. She was the great granddaughter of John Weston, ancestor of the family, who was in Reading in 1653. There were many marriages between the Wilkins and Weston families, as best shown by the chart on an adjacent page. Tabitha had married Captain Daniel Wilkins; her nephew, Daniel Weston, married Arethusa Wilkins (No. 599); another nephew, Thomas Weston, Jr., married Lucy Wilkins (No. 495); and a grand nephew, Thomas Weston, Jr., married Eliza Wilkins (No. 653).

Upon the death of Captain Wilkins his widow Tabitha married (2) Jesse Baldwin. They had one son Ebenezer, born Dec. 26, 1784. She married (3) Lieut. Joseph Farnum of Mont Vernon who died there in January 1820.

368 V 187 LIEUT. ROBERT BRADFORD WILKINS, son of Daniel and Mary (Hutchinson) Wilkins, was born Sept. 20, 1755 in Amherst, N. H. He died in Boston in August 1832. He married (1) Oct. 31, 1782, Elizabeth Stewart, who died July 7, 1784, aged 31 years. The name of his second wife has not been found. He lived in Amherst, Hillsborough, Concord, N. H., Pembroke, N. H., and Boston.

Lieut. Robert Bradford Wilkins was one of the most picturesque characters of the Revolution. He possessed a great fund of anecdotes, an inexhaustible store of humor and was withal a most agreeable companion. He was moreover a brave and daring soldier and possessed of shrewd judgment. So unusual was his character that he was made the subject of special reports by his superior officers in the Revolution and his memory has been perpetuated through lengthy sketches in the histories of Amherst and Hillsborough, and Revolutionary War records.

[1] Mass. Rev. War Rolls vol x, p 341

Lieut. Wilkins enlisted as a private, April 23, 1775, in the company of Capt. Levi Spaulding of Lyndeborough, N. H. He took part in the Battle of Bunker Hill, in which he was severely wounded, receiving a musket ball in his right elbow. He next served in the company of Capt. William Walker of Dunstable, Col. David Gilman's regiment, raised December 1776 to reinforce the army in northern New York. On the reorganization of the New Hampshire regiments in 1777 he enlisted in the company commanded by Capt. Isaac Frye of Wilton, N. H., which formed part of Col. Scammel's regiment. He was commissioned an ensign Mar. 28, 1779.

Lieut. Wilkins' promotion to commissioned rank entails a most interesting story, which is recorded in substance in the official reports. It seems he had attracted the attention of General Lafayette by his very human qualities and the general became much attached to him, respecting him greatly for his "daring and shrewdness". Early in 1779, Ensign Wilkins was assigned by Gen. Lafayette to skirmish for provisions for the army, which was in dire need at Valley Forge. Wilkins, taking a squad with him, went to Poules Neck (near King's Bridge) opposite New York City, collected a herd of cattle and drove them off under the nose and fire of the British and into the Yankee camp. For his daring and bravery he was rewarded by Gen. Lafayette with the commission of Lieutenant and Quartermaster, May 1, 1779. But Wilkins declined the promotion stating he was too poor to equip himself for the office. Whereupon, General Lafayette, personally, presented Wilkins with a uniform and accoutrements suitable to his rank and paid for them out of his own pocket, a remarkable tribute, and undoubtedly a most deserved one. Lieutenant Wilkins was for some time thereafter connected with the detachment under Lafayette, serving as quartermaster.

The attachment of Gen. Lafayette for Lieut. Wilkins had an unusual sequel many years after, when Gen. Lafayette made his farewell visit to America in 1825. Lafayette came to Concord, N. H., and was received at the state house by distinguished guests and Revolutionary War veterans. Lieut. Wilkins was among the veterans. General Lafayette recognized his old comrade in arms and enthusiastically embraced him, calling him, in his broken English, "Bob Wilks, Bob Wilks." While they were thus embracing one another, the tears running down their cheeks, General Pierce, who was acting as master of ceremonies, touched Wilkins on the shoulder, saying, "Come Bob, move on." This was too much for the veteran. Turning, and looking Pierce full in the face, Lieut. Wilkins exclaimed:

"Ben Pierce, I commanded you in the Revolution, and I'll be d----d if you shall command me now."

Lieut. Wilkins was at the Battle of Bunker Hill; in the battle at Bemis Heights Sept. 19, 1777; in the battle near Bemis Heights on Oct. 7 1777; was at Valley Forge in the winter of 1778; and marched to Hartford, Conn. He was attached, as lieutenant, to the second regiment, Col. George Reid, of the Continental Army.[1]

At the close of the war he married and went to Hillsborough, N. H., to live, residing at Bridge Village. He represented Hillsborough, and Henniker, on Jan. 12, 1788, as delegate to the Exeter convention which adopted the federal constitution. From Hillsborough he removed to Concord, N. H., where he was in June 1819. He next moved to Pembroke, N. H., where he lived some years, and in 1830 went to Boston where he died. He had four children, one by his first wife and three by his second wife.

607 VI 334 JOHN HUBBARD WILKINS, son of Deacon Samuel and Dorcas (Towne) Wilkins, was born Dec. 10, 1794, in Amherst, N. H., and was a grandson of Rev. Daniel Wilkins, the first minister in Amherst. His father intended he should be a merchant and he worked first in a store in Mont Vernon, N. H., and later with a firm on Long Wharf in Boston, until 1812. Returning home he expressed a desire to go to college, but his father could not help him financially. However, he fitted for college by tutoring with Rev. Humphrey Moore, who had married his first cousin, in Milford. He entered Harvard College, where he excelled in writing, worked his way through, and graduated in 1818, afterward receiving the degree of A. M. He taught school in Hollis, N. H., was preceptor of Bristol academy in Taunton, Mass., and then attended the theological school at Cambridge for two years, with an idea of going into the ministry. He became interested in Swedenborg, became affiliated with the Swedenborgian church in Boston, the New Jerusalem church, and throughout his life thereafter was one of its most active and prominent supporters. At his death he bequeathed his home, which adjoined the church, with $10,000, for a parsonage, to the Boston Society of the New Church (New Jerusalem Church). He wrote and published a treatise on astronomy which was an acknowledged masterly work and which was used for many years as a textbook in colleges.

In 1822, giving up the thought of entering the ministry, he entered the bookstore of Cummings, Hilliard & Co. in Boston, becoming a partner in 1826. He spent six months in travel in Europe in 1832. In 1833, with Charles Bolles as partner, he formed the firm of John H. Wilkins & Co., paper dealers, on Water street, Boston. Mr. Bolles retired in 1835 and was replaced by Richard B. Carter and the firm became J. H. Wilkins and R. B. Carter. In 1844 Alexander H. Rice entered the firm and in 1850 Charles S. Kendall, and then began the company of Carter, Rice & Co., which exists today in Boston. Mr. Carter retired in 1852 and Mr. Wilkins in 1853.

Mr. Wilkins was most active in public affairs and his judgment highly regarded. He became interested in a water supply for Boston and has been called the father of the Cochituate water supply system. He served ten years on the water board, five years as president.

He was a member of the Boston common council in 1840, 41, 42 and 43; alderman in 1847, 48 and 49. In 1852 he was the Whig candidate for mayor and came within a few votes of winning the election. He was representative to the General Court and in 1850-51 state senator, and a delegate to the constitutional convention of 1853.

He was president of the National Bank of Boston in 1853, trustee of the State Reform School for Girls at Lancaster and a member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society.

He married, Nov. 17, 1826, Mrs. Thomasine E. Minot, sister of Prof. P. C. Bond of Harvard College. He died in Boston Dec. 5, 1861. No children.

862 VII 598 GEORGE WILKINS KENDALL, son of Captain Thaddeus and Abigail (Wilkins) Kendall, was born in Mont Vernon, N. H., Aug. 22, 1809. He left his New Hampshire home in early life, at the age of fourteen, learned the printer's trade while still a boy, with Horace Greeley, a native of Amherst, N. H., and pushing far out from civilization, seeking adventure and fortune, found both in a large measure. He worked on Washington, D. C., newspapers and on the Register in Mobile. Little is known of his whereabouts for some years. At the age of 25 he went to New Orleans, worked in several print shops, and in June 1837, with Francis Alsbury Lumsden, founded The Picayune, destined under his masterful writing and editorial ability, to become one of the outstanding newspapers of the country.

The bright articles and sound editorials of The Picayune attracted the attention of the nation, and that Mr. Kendall's work was appreciated is best shown by the record of his election as an honorary member of the Philo Society of Jefferson College; honorary member of Phi Delta of Ogelthorpe University; corresponding member of the American Athanaeum of Paris, France; and honorary member of the Historical Society of Santa Fe, New Mexico. The paper remained in Mr. Kendall's hands until his death when it was sold to associates whose heirs now control the paper.

In 1841 Mr. Kendall joined an expedition to Santa Fe, N. M., to seek new routes to the far west. With him was President Mirabeau B. Lamar, president of the Texas Republic, and other prominent men. The adventure proved disastrous, the party were taken prisoners, lodged in jail in Mexico City and suffered untold tortures. A narrative of the events was written by Mr. Kendall, printed as a serial in The Picayune and later published by Harper Brothers; an English firm getting out a second edition later.

War with Mexico was declared in May 1846. Kendall mounted a mule in New Orleans and went overland to the Rio Grande and attached himself to the Texas Rangers under Ben. McCullough. He established, on the way, a "pony express," by means of which he was able to send his stories back to The Picayune. He served throughout the war under Generals Taylor, Worth and Scott, without a regular commission. He entered Mexico City with Gen. Scott and was wounded in the engagement.

He may be called one of the first "war correspondents." The stories he sent back to his paper attracted the attention of the entire country and his many "scoops" built up the circulation of The Picayune. Although still suffering from his wounds he engineered a "scoop" by which The Picayune printed the peace treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo before Washington received the official text.

At the end of the Mexican War, Kendall went to Europe. He carried with him many water color sketches of the battles of the war made on the scene, by an artist who accompanied him. One of his missions in Europe was to secure plates, for color reproductions of his paintings, from Carl Nebel in Antwerp, Belgium, for use in a history he proposed to write of the Mexican War. Kendall took up his residence in Brussells and travelled extensively over Europe.

On a visit to Paris, Mr. Kendall met Mlle. Adeline Suzanne de Valcourt, a lady of great beauty and accomplishments, who won the admiration of Mr. Kendall at once. She was the daughter of August Joseph Dieudonne Poirot de Valcourt, an officer in Napoleon's Old Guard, who had accompanied Napoleon on the fatal Moscow invasion, was wounded and almost lost his life because of frozen feet. The family of Mlle. Valcourt was of the highest nobility on both sides and of great wealth. At the time Napoleon was on the island of Elba, Col. Valcourt equipped at his own expense a company, furnishing horses, arms, etc., and joined the emperor, and was with him during his last days in France. However, he ruined himself by this outlay, was never reimbursed by the government and resigned from the army after Waterloo, not wishing to serve the Bourbons. Had he lived until the accession of Napoleon III his claims might have been allowed. His widow came to America and was accidentally drowned in a flood in the Guadalupe River, in Texas, Sept. 28, 1873. Mr. Kendall and Mlle. Valcourt were married in Antwerp, Belgium, in April 1849. They lived in Antwerp and Paris for some years, their four children being born in Paris.

Mr. Kendall and his family returned to America in December 1855, lived in New Orleans a while and settled on a ranch in New Braunfels, Texas, later moving, in 1860, to another ranch near Boerne, Kendall county (named in his honor), Texas. He devoted himself to raising Merina sheep from stock he had imported from the French Rambouillet estates, employing experienced sheep herders from Scotland, with trained shepherd dogs. He was urged to become a candidate for governor of Texas, but declined, having no desire for politics.

In 1866 Mr. Kendall made a flying trip to New Hampshire, viewed the scenes of his boyhood, visited ex-President Franklin Pierce, a close relative by marriage and with whom he had served in Mexico, and followed this with a trip to Europe to bring home one of his daughters there in school.

The remainder of his life was spent on his ranch in Texas where he busied himself completing his "History of the Mexican War." He died in Post Oak Springs, his ranch, in Kendall County, Oct. 21, 1867. His war history was never published and the manuscript is now in the library of the University of Texas. A biography, "Kendall of The Picayune," by Prof. Fayette Copeland of the University of Oklahoma, was published in February 1943.

Secomb's History of Mont Vernon states that "George Wilkins Kendall was a man of very strong character, a man that stood six feet, with regular features and most affable manner. He had a keen sense of humor and had, perhaps, the widest range of friends of any man in his community, or indeed wherever he might find himself. He was enthusiastically fond of Texas and never tired extolling its opportunities, climate, etc. The printers from his paper erected to his memory a marble monument, upon which are inscribed the following words: 'He was a poet, journalist, author, and farmer, eminent in all.'"

Adeline Suzanne de Valcourt-Kendall, his widow, married (2) April 1873, Benjamin D. Dane of Boston. He died in April 1912 and she died February 3, 1924.

884 VII 609 MAJOR GENERAL JOHN ADAMS DIX, veteran of two wars, secretary of the treasury of the United States, minister to France, governor of New York, and author of the famous words, "If anyone attempts to haul down the American flag, shoot him on the spot," was born July 24, 1798 in Boscawen, N. H., the son of Col. Timothy and Abigail (Wilkins) Dix. At the age of 10 years his father placed him under the care of a private tutor, who paid special attention to classical literature. In 1809 he went to Salisbury (N. H.) academy and in 1810 to Phillips Exeter academy, in both of which institutions he early won distinction as a public speaker. In 1811 he was sent to Montreal to attend Montreal University and learn the French language. Because of the War of 1812 he was compelled to return to the United States and spent a year in Boston under private tutors, making great progress in Latin, Greek, Spanish, mathematics and elocution.

When he was only 14, in December 1812, young John Dix was commissioned a cadet in the army and ordered to report to his father then in Maryland raising the 14th regiment. In March 1813 he resigned as cadet and became an ensign in his father's regiment and joined the army at Sackett's Harbor. His father having died and before he was 15, Dix became a second lieutenant, acting adjutant of an independent battalion in the regular army under Major Timothy Upham, and filled several staff appointments, among them aide-de-camp to Major General Brown.

After the War of 1812, Dix studied law under William Wirt, attorney general of the United States, and was admitted to the bar. In 1826 he received his first diplomatic appointment, being made a special messenger to Copenhagen. In 1828 he went to Cooperstown, N. Y., to look after private business interests and practice law. Two years later he was appointed adjutant general of New York state, then secretary of state and superintendent of schools, and removed to Albany to live. His service to the state during this period has been highly commended. Many reforms were accomplished at his direction and he issued some remarkable papers on the militia, public schools and geology.

A trip to Europe in 1842-4 was followed by his election to the United States senate where he immediately gained prominence as an orator and for his sound judgment.

Trouble having developed in the office of treasurer of the city of New York, Dix was named by President Pierce as assistant treasurer of the city in 1853. Dix cleared up the situation in some six months. Again, in 1860, he was called to the metropolis to become postmaster, defalcations having demoralized the service. In both these services Dix showed a great business ability and rendered commendable service. The years 1854 to 1857 found Mr. Dix serving as president of the Chicago and Rock Island and the Mississippi and Missouri railroads.

At the advent of the Civil War, on May 16, 1861, Dix was appointed major general of United States volunteers and helped to raise eleven regiments in New York state, and, altogether, sent 17 regiments into service. He was placed in command of the department of Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland, with headquarters at Baltimore, which he fortified. Later he succeeded Gen. McClellan in command at Fortress Monroe. He was in command of the department of the east as major general until Lee's surrender, when he resigned. It was in the troublesome days in the south, before war actually broke out and coast guard forces at New Orleans had attempted to rebel, that Dix sent his famous order to shoot anyone attempting to haul down the American flag from any American vessel.

President Buchanan, in the last months of his term, appointed Gen. Dix secretary of the treasury and Dix is credited with having aided greatly in restoring public confidence in the federal government through his administration of public affairs.

Gen. Dix served as naval officer of the port of New York in 1866. He was appointed minister to The Hague but did not accept. About 1866 he was appointed minister to France and went to that country and stayed until 1869 when he resigned and returned to the United States.

Gen. Dix had never sought public office and cared little for politics or political preferment, but he was put up as a candidate for governor of New York state, without his consent, by his friends and was elected in 1872, defeating Horace Greeley. His service of two years is recorded as one of the ablest and most valuable in the history of the Empire State.

Gen. Dix throughout his life, displayed great intellectual talents, military knowledge, and remarkable business ability. He was devoted to the Episcopal church and was a vestryman of Trinity church in New York city. He enjoyed fowling and was an excellent shot. When he retired from active life he settled on Long Island where he lived out his days in quiet study and relaxation.

Gen. Dix married, May 29, 1826, Catharine Morgan of New York city. Four sons and three daughters were born to 1059 IX 951 DR. GEORGE CLARENCE WILKINS, son of Charles Taylor and Emma Alicia (Stewart) Wilkins, was born in Lebanon, N. H., Mar. 8, 1876 and came to Manchester, N. H., with his parents in 1880. He graduated from the Manchester high school in 1894. In school he served as first lieutenant of the high school cadets and was manager of the baseball and football teams. Entering Harvard he received his M. D. degree in 1899 (cum laude), standing tenth in a class of 110. He served his internship and residency in Boston hospitals from 1899 to 1903 and then returned to Manchester to practice. He has been surgeon at the Elliot hospital in Manchester since 1903; director of the Elliot hospital cancer clinic since 1928; was a member of the state board of health 1915 to 1942, and president of the board from 1934 to 1942; member of the state board of examiners and embalmers, 1917 to 1933; member, New Hampshire Cancer Commission, since 1931 and consulting surgeon for New Hampshire U. S. Veterans Administration.

He served in World War No. 1 as captain and major, being chief of surgical service in military hospitals. In the officers reserve corps he was lieutenant colonel in 1924; colonel, commanding 322nd Medical Regiment in 1931, being retired 1940, and in 1942 was colonel of the Medical Reserve, inactive.

Some of his many medical societies include the New Hampshire state, county and local medical societies, in each of which he has served as president. He is a Fellow of the American Medical Association and American College of Surgeons and member of the American Radium Society; member, New England Surgical Society and New England Cancer Society; member and director of the American Society for the Control of Cancer and Diplomate, American Board of Surgery (Founders Group).

Dr. Wilkins is a Unitarian, a Republican, a 32nd degree Mason and Knight Templar, member of the Shrine and Sojourners, and a member of the Appalachian Mountain Club and Ragged Mountain Fish and Game Club.

A pioneer in radium therapy and cancer treatment, beginning in 1920, Dr. Wilkins has established a national reputation as an outstanding surgeon and authority on cancer treatment. Since 1919 his practice has been limited to surgery. He established the first cancer clinic in New Hampshire in 1928 and has been active in cancer control and cancer education. He has contributed many important medical papers to leading medical journals throughout the country during the past 35 years and

Supplemental Line

1 I 1 WILLIAM WILKINS[1], of English descent, was living in Salem, Mass., with his mother in the first half of the 18th century. It is recorded that his mother "was an excellent woman. She was accused when a girl of being a witch, went home from church and when they followed her, her father fought them with pitch fire brands and thus saved his child. Very little is known of William Wilkins." Such is the story to be found in several town histories, Mont Vernon and Antrim, N. H., and other places where descendants of this William Wilkins settled. One may only conclude that William's grandfather was an early settler in Salem, but no record of him has been identified, and no source found for the quotation given. Nor is there any indication that this William Wilkins was connected in any way, or descended from, Bray Wilkins of Dorchester, Lynn, Salem and Middleton. However, his descendants, or some of them, are herewith recorded.

Child:

2 II 1 Abiel Wilkins, removed from Salem, or that vicinity, to Mont Vernon, shortly after the Revolutionary War.

2 II 1 ABIEL WILKINS, son of William Wilkins of Salem, married Amy Howard and probably lived in Salem. He had at least three sons, William, who moved to Mont Vernon and then to Antrim, and James and Enoch, who appeared in Antrim about the same time as William. Moved to Mont Vernon shortly after Revolutionary War and settled on the farm in the south district now (1907) owned by Jesse R. Wilkins.

Children: (Probably all born in Mont Vernon, N. H.)

3 III 1 William, b 1774. Was in Mont Vernon in 1798 and moved to Antrim, N. H., where he died May 15, 1837, aged 63.

4 III 2 Enoch, b 1776. Settled in Antrim where he died, "very suddenly," June 13, 1851, aged 75 years.

5 III 3 Abiel, b Jan. 6, 1778.

6 III 4 James. Went to Antrim, N. H., in 1799 and died "in early life" June 13, 1801 or 1803. His widow died Oct. 2, 1852, aged 70.

Could Abraham have been Emigrant William's father?

Note—Captain William Wilkins of London married Hannah Bean of York in Newbury, July 13, 1730—Newbury, Mass., records.
William Wilkins is listed among emigrants from England to Salem.

7 III 5 Jesse, b 1782. d 1812, aged 30 yrs., of spotted fever.

7a III 6 Phebe, m Mar. 27, 1825, John Heywood.

3 III 2 WILLIAM WILKINS, son of Abiel and Amy (Howard) Wilkins, was born in Mont Vernon in 1774. He died in Antrim, N. H., May 15, 1837, aged 63 years. William is found in Mont Vernon before 1798, in which year he moved to Antrim, N. H. In the latter town he settled at the foot of the sand-hill, living some years in a log house and put up better buildings a few rods north of it. He married (1) Sarah Whipple of Hamilton, Mass., who died May 13, 1826, aged 46 years after giving him five children. Married (2) July 20, 1826, Elizabeth Hopkins, of a noted Antrim family. She died in 1856, aged 69 years. Was probably the daughter of James Hopkins, Esq., who came to Antrim from Windham in 1783.

4 III 2 ENOCH WILKINS, son of Abiel and Amy (Howard) Wilkins, was born in Mont Vernon in 1776 and settled early in Antrim. He located "above the school house in the extreme west of this town, some thirty rods north of the road now leading to Stoddard Box. Buildings are now (1880) gone." He married Sally Case, born in Antrim 1777, and descendant of John Case of Middleton, whose son David went to Lyndeboro and Antrim. They had no children, but brought up two children, Hiram Fairfield and Jane P. Town. Enoch Wilkins died very suddenly June 13, 1851 and his wife died Oct. 2, 1852, both being 75 years of age at death.

5 III 2 ABIEL WILKINS, Jr., son of Abiel and Amy (Howard) Wilkins, was born in Mont Vernon Jan. 6, 1778 (?) and lived on the homestead where he died July 31, 1859. He married Jan. 31, 1812, Amy, or Emma, Heywood, daughter of William Heywood, who was born Apr. 15, 1791 and died Aug. 23, 1872. He was a farmer.

Children: (All born in Mont Vernon)

20 IV 6 Almira, b Jan. 17, 1825. d Dec. 13, 1852. m Tyler Tupper of Mont Vernon, being his second wife.

6 III 2 JAMES WILKINS, son of Abiel and Amy (Howard) Wilkins, was born in Mont Vernon, and removed to Antrim, N. H., about 1799, where he died in 1803 "in early life." (The Mont Vernon records state he died June 13, 1801.) He married Lydia Whipple, thought to have been sister of his brother William's wife, and removed to Antrim in 1799. On reaching Antrim they "moved into a little hovel, built by Michael George, then standing a little toward the west of the subsequent site, while he put up the present house (Luther Wilkins') which he completed in 1801. He died in 1803, in early life, just after his buildings were completed and part of his land cleared, leaving three children" says the History of Antrim.

Children: (Born in Antrim)

21 IV 1 James, b 1792. d Sept. 1832. He married, Sept. 8, 1818, Mariam Harper. Moved to Reading, Vt., Nov. 1820, where he was some time a school teacher, and afterwards settled in Weston, Vt., where he died Sept. 1832. Supplemental Line

A numerous Wilkins family resident in and about Milford, N. H., is descended from Jotham Wilkins. There seems good reason to believe that Jotham was a descendant of Bray Wilkins, but neither town records examined nor family data has disclosed the connection.

Vital records in Dracut, Mass., give the birth of Thomas Jefferson Wilkins, son of Jotham and Jane Wilkins, on March 14, 1817. Also the birth of James Munroe Wilkins, another son, born Sept. 15, 1825.

New Hampshire records show that Jotham Wilkins enlisted from Amherst in the War of 1812 on Aug. 19, 1812 for 18 months service and also that Jotham Wilkins was head of a family of seven persons in Amherst on Aug. 1, 1820. It is believed both the Dracut and Amherst Jothams were the same person.

The birth records of both Thomas Jefferson and James Munroe give the first name of their mother as "Jane." The death certificate of Thomas Jefferson, in Milford, N. H., gives his mother's maiden surname as "Lampson," born in New Boston, N. H., from which it may be deduced she was Jane Lamson.

There was a well known family of "Lamson" in New Boston, adjoining Amherst, N. H. Some of its members had married members of the Wilkins family. However, there appears to be no record of a Jane Lamson in the town statistics.

The following is the record of the descendants through Thomas Jefferson Wilkins:

THOMAS JEFFERSON WILKINS, son of Jotham and Jane (Lamson) Wilkins, was born in Dracut, Mass., Mar. 14, 1817. He was a teamster. The Milford, N. H., History states he came to Milford from Lowell, Mass., in 1857. Members of the family state he came to Milford from Brookline, N. H. He married, in 1854, Nancy G., daughter of Courtney and Sarah (Ward) Sears, born Jan. 7, 1836 in Sackville, N. B. Mr. Wilkins died Nov. 27, 1899 in Milford and Mrs. Wilkins died in March 1917, also in Milford.

Appendix

APPENDIX A

"Black Will" was the last remaining Indian of a tribe which had inhabited these parts in the early days before the white man came. He lived on the north side of Will's Hill. Sometime before there had been another of his tribe, called "Spring," who had lived on the south side of the hill, but Black Will outlived him.

In the diary of Mrs. M. J. Averill appears the following anecdote of Black Will which she had received from one Andrew Gould:

"Will, the Indian, once invited Rev. Andrew Peters to dine with him. He had skunks cooked and Mr. Peters did not accept the invitation. Afterwards Mr. Peters, happening along at meal time, was asked by the Indian if he liked eels. Upon saying that he did he was again invited to eat with him. After eating, Will said: 'Well, what do you think you have been eating?' 'Eels,' replied Mr. Peters. 'Why, no,' said the other. 'A fortnight ago you wouldn't eat skunks and now you have eat rattlesnakes.' The Indian had skinned, cooked and served rattlesnakes."

APPENDIX B

The following is the inscription on the monument which stands in the old cemetery in Amherst, N. H., to the memory of the Rev. Daniel Wilkins. The date of death is given erroneously as 1783; it should read 1784.

Ecce Addisce Vivere
Erected
by the town of Amherst
To the Memory of
Rev. Daniel Wilkins
Who departed this life Feb. 11, 1783, in the 73rd year of his age and 42nd of his ministry.

He was a Gentleman of good natural and acquired abilities; he received the honors of Harvard University at Cambridge, in 1736, and was separated to ye work of ye ministry in 1741, at which time his church consisted of only five male members and his Charge of fourteen families. As a Minister he was laborious; his Public Discourses were liberal and Sentimental, pathetic, solemn, and persuasive. He was endowed with a venerable presence and Commanding Voice and an Emphatic Delivery.

He had a tender Feeling for his Charge, and was a Partner with them in all their Joys and Sorrows; his conversation with them was Enlightening, Edifying, and Comforting.

He was an Example of Patience and Meekness, and always endeavored to promote Peace. His natural Temper was remarkably Sweet and pleasant. He had a high relish for ye refined pleasures of Friendship. His Behaviour was not ceremonious, but grave, Yet Sprightly and agreeable. In a word, he was a Devoted Minister and Faithful Christian, a good companion, a tender Husband, and an indulgent Parent.

The Sweet Remembrance of the Just Shall flourish when he sleeps in dust.

APPENDIX C

No. 335. Captain Daniel Wilkins was in command of the company surrendered at The Cedars and died on the way home at Crown Point. Others in the company were Andrew Wilkins, Sylvester Wilkins, Daniel Wilkins 3d, and John Mills, grandfather of Ebenezer Mills.

The "disgraceful surrender" of the American forces by Major Butterfield at The Cedars, near Montreal, in Canada, caused the filing of two interesting petitions with the New Hampshire legislature, one in March 1779, and a second in October 1783, given herewith in full:

"To the Honourable the Council and house of Representatives to be conven'd at Exeter, in New Hampshire on the 10th day of March 1779.

"The Humble Petition and Remonstrance of the Company Commanded by Capt Daniel Wilkins, in Colo Beedels Regt in Canada humbly sheweth than on ye 19th of May 1776, we unhappily fell into the hands of our unnatural and savage Enemy at the Cedars in Canada, when Major Butterfield our commanding officer Capitulated with Capt Foster of the British army to the great grief and surprise of said Company, on the following terms (viz) that we surrender ourselves as prisoners of war and was to deliver up our arms which accordingly we did, and we was to have our packs and Baggage-and Capt Foster Engaged not to suffer the savages to plunder or abuse us, nor suffer the British troops so to do. But contrary to the Rules of War, they inhumanly without regard to their promise, suffered the savages to rob and plunder us of our packs and baggage, and strip us of our clothes off our backs and left us entirely naked, in this deplorable situation we were left in an enemies Country without money clothing or friends that could contribute to our relief—Therefore your humble petitioners humbly pray that your honors would take the matter under your serious consideration and grant to each person a sum something adequate to the loss he sustained, and your Petitioners will gratefully acknowledge the favour, and as in duty bound shall ever pray."

Capt. Wilkins was one of the signers of the petition. The second petition, also signed by Capt. Wilkins, Andrew Wilkins, Sylvester Wilkins, Daniel Wilkins, 3rd, John Mills, with others, was as follows:

"To the Honorable Senate and house of Representatives to be held at Concord in the State of New Hampshire on Tuesday, the Eighteenth day of October 1783—

"The Petition of the subscribers, Humbly Sheweth how barbarously and inhumanly we and our Company had been treated when we unhappily fell into the hands of our avowed Enemies at the Cedars in Canada, the 19th of May-1776.

"Agreeable to a capitulation made with Captain Foster of the British Army, we were to surrender ourselves as prisoners of war and to deliver our fire arms, which accordingly we did, and each man of us was to occupy and enjoy his private property, without any interruption molestation or abuse under any pretence whatsoever—But contrary to the rules of piety and Justice, and in open violation of the promise made to us, we had been treacherously robbed, and totally stript of every individual thing we possessed by the most inexorable and unrelenting Savages, who are destitute of the least sensation of humanity & Compation, it is morally impossible to Conceive or form a true Idea of their cruel & barbarous treatment to us, while under their unmerciful subjection some of us had been stript to our very shirts; and every punishment inflicted on us that their barbarity could invent or suggest, a Malencolly circumstance that the true born sons of liberty should be thus insulted and abused by such brutal savages-Worthy Gentlemen, our losses were considerable, being stript of our arms and Cloth-ing and Exposed to the greatest hardships and extremities, destitut both of money and clothes-nay even of the common necessaries of life; and really we were not induced or influenced by any views or incourageement to undergo or expose ourselves to these calamities But actuated merely for the love of our Country and to defend the american cause, with undaunted Courage and resolution, as much as in us lay considering what a glorious cause we had to support therefore stimulated and animated with those pleasing and laudable motives we did not Hestiate to sacrifice our lifes in the defense of our Country-Most Honble Gentlemen. Thus we your Humble petitioners state the case of our losses & calamities before you which were relative and peculiar to us, therefore with submission we apply for redress, in humble expectation that your generosity disinterested integrity, and fidelity, and the Justness of our cause will Efficaciously prevail with you to restore to us our losses and in so doing we your humble petitioners as in duty Bound will ever pray."

APPENDIX D

The company of Captain Josiah Crosby, which was composed largely of men from Amherst, including several members of the Wilkins family, was present at Cambridge, Mass., on July 2, 1775, when George Washington took command of the Continental Army, and were close witnesses of the ceremonies. Andrew Leavitt, one of the oldest survivors, gave the following account of the day to Daniel F. Secomb, author of the History of Amherst, N. H.

"The officers placed their men in as good shape as they could, but they were a motley looking set, no two dressed alike. Some were armed with fowling pieces, some with rifles, others with muskets without bayonets. When all was in readiness, Washington and his staff advanced to the square prepared for their reception. He was a large, noble looking man, in the prime of life, and was mounted on a powerful black horse over which he seemed to have perfect control.

"After a short address to the soldiers, he took from his pocket a Psalm book, from which he read the one hundred and first Psalm." (Another account says it was then sung by the soldiers to the tune of Old Hundred.)

Addenda

The three lines referring to No. 941 and No. 942, on page 123, should be eliminated. See No. 1111 and No. 1112, on page 150, for correct data.

The conflicting records for Othaniel Wilkins, found under No. 111 on page 50 and under No. 172 on page 61, are one of the unsolved puzzles of the Bray Wilkins family to date. The vital statistics of Salem, Middleton and Boxford apparently allow of either interpretation, consequently both are given herein.

Page 81. No. 553. Anna was not born in Concord, dau. of Margaret (Munroe) Wilkins. Her correct lineage is given on page 55 under No. 309.
